

LITERARY CONNECTIONS...

T-Shirt Appreciation

To the girl on the skytrain wearing the shirt that read,
"I'm silently correcting your grammar," I want to have your babies!

YVR Shuttle

YOU: in town for a writers' conference.

ME: just back from a vacation in Mexico. We had a great chat cut short when I had to exit the shuttle at my stop. I'm thinking about you and wishing we could pick up where we left off.

Hot Chocolate Extra Hot

I was working on my laptop in that coffee shop at Broadway and Cambie, when you walked in with your friend. You ordered your hot chocolate extra hot (emphasis on the hot) and shared a giggle with your pal, before sitting at the table next to mine.

I was too shy to say hello and looked down at my screen every time you glanced over. I just wanted you to know, I'm working up the courage to strike up a conversation...

In the Fraser Room:

You wore blue. I was nervously awaiting an appointment, clutching my pages. You winked.

Your ad goes here. The word count should be no longer than 41 words. Advertise your services or simply say hello to someone with whom you would like to make a literary connection. Only $10.

Email kcdyer@siwc.ca

"An incredible and refreshing story! I couldn't take my eyes off this book and I was pleasantly surprised by its subject: death."

—Goodreads Review

"I can see a YA audience being drawn to this book and I found myself, at almost 40, completely mesmerized by the story."

—Amazon Review

WHO KNEW KISSING A CORPSE WOULD CHANGE EVERYTHING?

A STIFF KISS

a YA novel by

Avery Olive

Look for WON'T LET GO, Coming Winter 2013

A Crescent Moon Press Publication

ADVERTISEMENT

*SiWC was, hands down, the best conference experience
I've ever had in nearly 20 years of writing life, and I'm absolutely thrilled and honoured that I'll get to be a part of it again.*

~Susanna Kearsley, author, presentee 2011-13

Where has your writing taken you?

Go Further

ROMANCE WRITERS OF AMERICA®

GREATER VANCOUVER CHAPTER

WWW.RWAGVC.COM

ADVERTISEMENT